Lore Ipsum is simply dummy text of the printing and typesetting industry. Lore Ipsum has been the industry's standard dummy text ever since the 1500s, when an unknown printer took a galley of type and scrambled it to make a type specimen book. It has survived not only five centuries, but also the leap into electronic typesetting

EXPERIENCE

I first got attracted to the web world in high school, while taking a CNT (compute network technician) class I started to have a fasination on how the web really worked and I initiated to research on making a webiste, at that time I was clueless but I started to undertand it little by little on my own.

College

After high school I enrolled into college with a really interested in 3D design, the course I enrolled was Game and Web Design, this looked like a really great choise for me since I started to dabble on making websites. by this time I have already pick up some skills in Photoshop, Flash, ActionScript, HTML, 3D Max.

Working at MSED I gain much field experience in web design working directly with clients and coworkers, at the same time I begin to improve some of my programming ability by learning Javascript , jQuery , by creating small plugins to help improve my job effeciency.

Working at MSED I learn their custom CMS, after grasping the CMS I worked closely with the programer to implement responsive design, this allow the company to more option to offer to clients

Devbootcamp

Enrolled at Devbootcamp, after working for a few years as a web designer and getting a little more insight on programming I realized the path I wanted to take in my career, I really enjoy challenges and figuring things out, as I started to work more with jQuery and Javescript I desided I really want to be a front-end web developer, and this is where DevBootcamp was the best option for me to help me take the next step on my career
